Tuition Freedom Day

College is expensive. We all know that. At MLC, the actual cost for a student to attend is about $23,000 a year. But because of WELS congregational mission offerings, individual donors, special gifts from congregations, and government aid, the average MLC student only pays $13,000. The second annual Tuition Freedom Day gave students a chance to "Give a Hoot!" by writing and recording personal thank-you messages to show their appreciation for the financial support of congregations and donors. "All their encouragement and assistance is really a hidden blessing," says Joe Blum (FVL). "We don't think about it often, but these people truly help a lot and make it so much easier for all of us to afford the great and important education we get at MLC."
