MARTIN LUTHER COLLEGE

Eager To Be at MLC

As the year ends, MLC bids farewell to its graduates. Many will receive calls and launch their teaching ministries, and others will head to the seminary for further pastoral training. But it also means a new batch of fresh, friendly faces is coming soon. At Luther, 12 seniors are so eager to be at MLC they've started their own tradition: "MLC Mondays." Every Monday, seniors who will attend MLC—and even some who won't—sport their finest Knights' apparel.

Lydia Wassermann explains how it began: "After we had gotten shirts from the Focus trip, I wore mine on a Monday, and as a joke I said, 'MLC Monday!' It's stuck ever since." Although they're a great group of friends all coming to MLC together, they're also excited to meet new people. "I can't wait to go to MLC next year," says Jennifer Adickes, "because I get to learn what I'm passionate about, keep connections with old friends, and branch out and meet new ones!"

Great End to a Great Year

Though the year is winding down, the fun was heating up at two MLC events: Swine Sizzler and the SPaMball tournament. "The Swine Sizzler is always a riot!" says Todd Brassow (MLS). "They've got a kickball tournament, live musical entertainment, relay races, an egg toss, tug-of-war, bocce ball, lawn games, a pie eating contest (pictured), inflatable sumo suits, and my personal favorite: the inflatable obstacle course. I couldn't come up with a better way to wrap up the year myself."

The SPaMball tournament was also a smashing success. MLC presem students battled seminarians in slow pitch softball. Some teams took the games more seriously than others (like the MLC seniors who wore kilts), but everyone—even the fans—had an awesome time at the game and at the stellar cookout with hamburgers and brats. In the end, the MLC juniors brought the coveted trophy back where it belongs. "The boys fought hard through rain and shine and wind," says junior fan Emilee Koltz (LPS). "We came out victorious!" Pictured: Kilt-wearing seniors Ben Birner (LPS), Tom Gorzalski (FVL), and Peter Plagenz (WLA).
