What Is “ONE MISSION – Endless Opportunities”?

By Director of Admissions Mark Stein

This fall we welcomed a large class of new students. It's always exciting to see this gathering of young Christians willing to consider public ministry. Some are convinced of their goal to serve the church, others are not so sure, and still others are just looking for a place to play football or sing in a choir or be with other Christian leaders. The point is, our campus is full of young Christian leaders looking for an opportunity.

The big question for each of them is “What is my opportunity?”

Most students struggle with this question during the transition from high school to college—and even into the college years. What's unique about MLC is that although we have a single mission, it allows for endless opportunities—even more than you can conceive of right now.

Our one mission is to produce workers for the church. That single focus is rare these days. Most colleges and universities have many things to offer, many degrees and colleges on one campus. But MLC, like many of the first colleges in the United States now known as Ivy League institutions, was founded for that one mission.

Now, those ideas may seem to clash: MLC is a single-focused institution, but the opportunities are endless?

Let's look at it this way. Being a pastor, teacher, or staff minister is just a label. What we do is ministry, and we do it all over the world. Teaching, preaching, and serving take many forms: teaching English as a second language, coaching, counseling, leading Bible class—all are types of ministry, and there are endless opportunities to add to this list!

This is where our Heavenly Father comes into the picture. Our Father loves you and has your future in his hands. He provides the opportunities for you—opportunities that put your gifts to good use for his kingdom.

If you want to serve others, if you have leadership skills, if you like interacting with people, MLC may be the place for you!

From Milwaukee to Asia, from California to Africa, from Michigan to Europe, this college in Minnesota, MLC, provides endless opportunities to serve while sticking to its one mission. Come and see for yourself!

God bless you, and see you soon!

Decisions, Decisions

MEET NEW ADMISSIONS COUNSELOR GALEN HOLZHUETER

In a close game, good decisions make all the difference. Swinging at the right pitch. Shooting the high-percentage jumper. Making the smart pass.

It was good decisions that helped Galen Holzhueter '14 make his mark as an MLC athlete. A ten-time letter-winner in football, basketball, and baseball, Holzhueter finished his collegiate career with six school records, six All-UMAC awards, and ten Academic All-UMAC honors.

Yep, Galen knows good decisions. And now, as MLC's newest admissions counselor, he stands ready to help you make one of the most important decisions you'll ever face: your college choice.

"I want to tell high school students about MLC," he says, "that it's a small college with an intimate environment and a culture rooted in Christ that they won't find at many other colleges."

Holzhueter made his college and career decision back in grade school at St. Mark in Mankato, Minnesota. "Ever since fourth grade, I knew I wanted to be a teacher," he says. "When I'd sit in class and other students would struggle, I liked helping them out. And I remember my eighth grade teacher, Ryan Jaeger, flying around the room. It was great seeing his passion and energy in front of the classroom. I had an awesome experience at St. Mark. I came to MLC because I wanted to give a similar experience to the next generation."

During college, Galen took advantage of the endless opportunities to grow in his faith and in his skills—in the classroom, on the court, with people. "College changed me," he says, "by helping me appreciate my relationships with my friends and family. Being part of a team helped me develop relationships too. I made some of my best friends there. And no matter what kind of ministry you end up doing, you'll always be part of a team, working together toward a common goal."

Galen hopes you'll consider pursuing the public ministry—as a pastor, teacher, or staff minister—at Martin Luther College, just as he did. "Just come for a year and get a taste of it," he says, "and I don't think you'll be able to leave."

Meet Galen

Previous call: Risen Savior-
Mankato MN: grades 3-4

Family: Parents Paul and Val, brothers Grant (married to Lindsay) and Greg (married to Emma), who is an MLC professor and coach

Influencer: "My father always encouraged me to become a pastor, but he was equally supportive when I decided to become a teacher."

Hobbies: sports, games, movies, cooking

Books of choice: The Prodigal God and The Reason for God by Timothy Keller

Movies of choice: sports movies like Miracle and Remember the Titans and also chick flicks (secret favorite: Pride and Prejudice)

Music of choice: all genres

You'd never guess: He eats mostly raw, organic, and vegan foods.

NEW CALL, NEW HOME, NEW LIFE

Should I go to MLC? Sarah Frost '16 wondered the same thing at your age. But she took the leap, and after graduating in May with a double major (early childhood and elementary ed), she was assigned as the early childhood director and lead teacher for 3K-4K at St. Paul-Tomah, Wisconsin. School is just about to start for her, and she's ready!

Sarah, what are you most excited about? Everything about your first call is exciting. Moving to a new city, becoming part of a new congregation, having all new experiences—it makes the years of studying and training meaningful and appreciated. But by far, I'm most excited to teach the children about the love of their Savior. Over half the families are not members at St. Paul, and a good percentage of them don't have a home church. What a wonderful opportunity to plant the seed and let the Holy Spirit do his work!

Are you nervous? I'm most nervous about the first week. Starting preschool is a huge transition for both the children and their families. The first week will be about building relationships and getting into a comfortable routine. No longer is there a veteran teacher in the classroom for me to turn to for guidance. I'm it now!

What have you done to prepare? I did inventory and sorted materials and toys—and preschool rooms need a ton of both! Then I rearranged the two preschool rooms, made block plans, and prepped materials for teaching.

You're also the director. What are your administrative tasks? I'm keeping track of tuition payments, creating a budget, writing policies for the program, drawing up plans for a summer program, and learning other aspects of my administrative position.

Did MLC prepare you for all this? The education I received at MLC was truly of the highest quality. We were given real-life advice along with textbook learning, so I don't feel overwhelmed. We were told we'd hit the ground running as first-year teachers, and I couldn't describe the past two months any better.

What's the most important thing you learned at MLC? How important relationships are. I've already established strong relationships with my faculty and congregation. My goal is to continue growing relationships with my students and their families, and then in the community. Most important, MLC ingrained in me that my relationship with my Savior is my first priority. I know that it is God who works through me, and his love is what touches hearts.

Any surprises? What's most surprised me is how much trust and confidence people put in new teachers. Not that I was expecting the opposite, but in my mind I'm very aware that I am a first-year teacher. Yet teachers in the field and congregation members respect the training that MLC graduates receive and listen to their input and experiences. What an encouragement that's been!

What kind of teacher do you hope to be? I'd love to be the perfect teacher: the one who's always calm, always knows the right thing to say, always plans lessons that are engaging, and always has life organized. However, I realize that my students don't need a perfect teacher. They need a teacher who shows them Jesus and his love, who points them to the cross when they sin, and who is willing to grow right alongside them. I want to be the teacher who wakes up each day assured that God's grace is sufficient and that his power is made perfect in my weakness, so that I can enjoy each day with my students and show them the love of their Savior.

Finally, did you always want to be a teacher? No. In fact, I was dead set against MLC. However, God's thoughts are higher than my thoughts, and he blessed me with parents, teachers, and pastors who taught me about my Savior and encouraged me to use my gifts in service to God and others. No matter what path we as God's children choose in life, we know that our Savior is in control and gives us countless opportunities to praise him with our lives and to share the message of his grace.

YOUR CHURCH NEEDS YOU

MLC President Mark Zarling could not be clearer: "There is a critical need for both pastors and teachers."

At the last three Call Days (May 2014, '15, and '16), a total of 113 teacher requests and 58 pastor requests went unfilled.

And the shortage may worsen. Today's graduating classes cannot replace the large number of called workers who are retiring. And some ministries—Divine Savior in Miami and urban schools in Milwaukee, for example—are expanding.

"It is indeed true," President Zarling continues, "that there is 'One Mission, Endless Opportunities' for young people to be used by the Lord Jesus."

Jesus himself says it like this: "The harvest is plentiful, but the workers are few" (Luke 10:2).

Might you be one of those workers? We invite you to think about that question at Martin Luther College!

Erin Westendorf '16 hears she is assigned to Beautiful Savior-Las Vegas. She was one of 110 candidates assigned in May 2016, but an additional 28 requests for teachers went unfilled. At the seminary, 23 requests for pastors went unfilled.
