

What They Love About MLC

Hey, Knight Nation! We asked some Student Ambassadors what they love about MLC. If you'd like a campus where Christ is the focus, where your friends encourage you in your faith, and where you get to use all your gifts, that's MLC!

Kate Mensching (LPS / St. Luke-Watertown WI): "I love the people at MLC. I love being surrounded by Christian men and women who build me up in my faith. The atmosphere here is unique because we're all working toward the same goal: the Great Commission. I also love being involved in a wide range of activities inside and outside of school. Here at MLC, I'm able to participate in sports, have an off-campus job, and balance school work with my social life."

Grant Gawrisch (St. Croix LA / New Life-Shoreview MN): "You will not find a collegiate faculty equipped with more experience, intelligence, relatability, and friendliness than our professors. . . . As to dorm life, MLC possesses a certain je nais se quois. Whether you have an inexhaustible social battery or prefer to spend more time alone, the dorm life of MLC provides an excellent arena to do both. A new student will be exposed to many new faces who share a common faith and goal: serving our God in the public ministry."

Isabelle Steidl (WISCO / St. Paul-Muskego WI): "One thing I love about MLC is how many different events are constantly going on—from intramurals to painting night to Bible studies and more. They are such a fun way to hang out with friends as well as meet new people. Another thing I love is the family environment we have at MLC. We're all here for the same purpose of becoming pastors, teachers, and staff ministers. It's so cool knowing I have hundreds of people around me who care about the same things I do and will someday be my coworkers in the ministry."

Claire Tomhave (LPS / St. Paul-Lake Mills WI): "I personally love being on a campus where I know almost every face I pass in the hallways. Since MLC is a relatively smaller school compared to public universities, our student body does feel like a big family. I also appreciate that professors know each of us personally and do deeply care about us. I've built relationships with my coaches and professors over my four years here, and I'd never hesitate to send them a text or email when I needed help or support."

Nathan Pausma (WLA / St. Luke-Oakfield WI): "The community here is truly unlike any other place. We share the same faith and values, and we're one of the few colleges where you study with the people you'll be working with in the future. We're even taught by the same people we'll call our colleagues in the future. Another thing I love about MLC is the cafeteria. The fact that we can go in whenever, and swipe our fancy student IDs without thinking about it, and get whatever food we want is a huge blessing. Many other colleges have meal plans, and it costs a ton of money to eat what you need, but here it's just part of your room and board."

Kassi Aguilar (California LHS / Cross of Glory-Peoria AZ): "MLC is such a special place. Our professors are some of the kindest people I've met. I've found a campus-wide family in MLC and am thankful for the relationships that have come from this place."
