Little Women: The Broadway Musical

If you love theater, you'll absolutely love Forum productions at MLC! Wherever your gifts lead—to acting, singing, costuming, playing in the pit—you'll find a place!

This year's production of Little Women: The Broadway Musical was another winner, giving viewers great music and all the feels.

Zoe really captures the spirit of Forum at MLC: "At MLC, all sense of competition is nearly eliminated. Sometimes theater allows participants to develop a bit of an ego, but that is not the case at MLC. Everyone is so dedicated to praising God with their theatrical gifts that all conversation, both on- and off-stage, is encouraging and Christ-centered."

That spirit of community is a defining mark of MLC itself. "It is a rare blessing to find a place that keeps Christ at the center of everything we do," Zoe says. "As a student, I am constantly surrounded by strong Christian examples who encourage me as I pursue an education to join the public ministry."
